Take a Look at Next Week...

Reading: We have finished our author study of Kevin Henkes and are ready to begin the next story, Technology Wins the Game. The students will be researching famous athletes who have continued to compete despite having a disability and learning about what type of technology allows them to continue their passion.

Math: Unit 4 will continue as we learn about equivalent fractions.

Science: (see side note for information about a new series we will begin next week). We will also continue Unit 3 by writing about animal traits and survival and inferring what traits either help or hinder an animal in their environment.

Social Studies: This week we will continue working on an interactive notebook to learn about Missouri government and the roles and responsibilities of those elected to positions within our state government.

English: We will begin Mountain Language-this is a weekly comprehensive review of numerous skills that we have worked on this year. This includes, nouns, verbs, plural and singular, sentence structure, spelling, and alphabetizing. We will begin every Monday with a new review until the end of the year. We will also begin our next unit over using verb tenses correctly when writing.

AR points earned up through the 15th will be sent home.

Your child will know what they have left for the rest of the month in order to reach their goal.

From Mrs. Scott
January 19, 2024

We will start a 9 week program for Ag-Education in which we have an instructor coming every Tuesday to our classroom to teach about where the food we eat starts and the stages that it goes through before it makes it to our table.

Dates to Remember...

January 22: Bookmobile at ACES.

January 31: AR points are due!!
