Looking at Next Week...

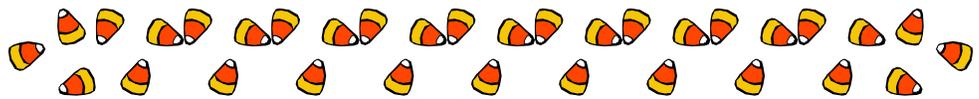

Reading: This week we will finish reading Roberto Clemente. We will be working with cause and effect more with this story. We will quiz on Wednesday. This week will begin an outside literature set book, The Chalkbox Kid. We will use this book to work on visualizing within the story and work on character traits with proof from story events.

Math: We will be continuing on with unit 2. We will be learning multiplication with 6s and 8s this week.

Science: The class has completed unit 1 and we have started unit 2 which is about inherited traits. We will be looking at the relatedness of blue whales and buttercups and observe similarities and differences in animals.

Social Studies: We will be wrapping up our Lewis and Clark unit this week. The unit will end on Thursday with their plays they have been practicing. The students are excited to perform them for their classmates this week!

English: We will continue working with verbs, and also begin looking at common and proper nouns. I have a lot of activities for the students to complete this week and a surprise at the end of the week!
