What are we doing next week?

Reading: We will continue working with the story Creepy Carrots. Students will begin working with cause and effect and summarizing. We will also begin to work with the story Roberto Clemente. We will be working on vocabulary and read the story this week.

Math: Our unit on multiplication and division will continue with repeated practice of 2, 3, 5, 9, 4, and 10. Please be sure to practice multiplication facts every night with your child. We will have our first unit assessment on Thursday.

Science: Next week we will have our first unit assessment over Balancing Forces on Wednesday. We will review for the test on Tuesday. This assessment will not be one that students spend a lot of time studying for. Rather, they will be taking what we have learned in our investigations to apply their knowledge to given situations. Students can use their investigative notebook to review the vocabulary words at the back new curriculum purchased by the district and students are considered to be scientists who can apply concepts rather than memorize them.

Social Studies: We will continue learning all about Lewis and Clark. They will be doing a group presentation on Wednesday and reading maps from the expedition.

English: We have completed the rough draft of the narrative writing. We will work on editing, revising, and publishing next! These will be finished before conference time so that you can see what great writers we have!

October 10: PTO Culver's Night from 5:00-8:00. This is a great opportunity for parents and students to support our PTO. There will be a few staff members working at Culver's from 5:00-8:00 and the PTO will receive 20% of the profit made at Culver's during these hours. This enables teachers to have a little extra money for classroom supplies through the year. Drive-up counts, too! If you don't want to cook dinner that night, this is a great option! Hope to see a lot of you there!!
